1. RESEARCH BACKGROUND

Chinese path to modernization is the product of the organic combination of the universal laws of modernization and China's special national conditions. It shows distinctive Chinese characteristics on the basis of following the laws of world modernization.

Western countries took the lead in initiating the modernization process, creating industrial civilization, promoting the great development of social productivity, and driving the overall development of world modernization. The achievements of modernization construction in Western countries have attracted a large number of latecomer countries to follow, thus forming a development trend of spreading to other countries around the world with Western first mover countries as the core. In the process of modernization, Western countries have recklessly colonized and plundered other backward countries in order to seek greater benefits, and China has also suffered heavy disasters. China was forced to embark on the path of modernization exploration in order to overcome the embarrassing situation of "national difficulties, national humiliation, and civilization dust". The birth of the CPC has changed the situation of passive modernization, provided the backbone for China's modernization and continued to promote China's development.

In the practice of promoting and expanding modernization, we should grasp the common characteristics of modernization and more accurately grasp the Chinese characteristics of Chinese path to modernization. This paper attempts to make a comprehensive and systematic summary of the Chinese characteristics of Chinese path to modernization, in order to help promote and expand Chinese path to modernization.

2. RESEARCH PROGRESS ON CHINESE CHARACTERISTICS OF CHINESE PATH TO MODERNIZATION

Chinese path to modernization is a modernization led by the CPC, rooted in China's national conditions, a modernization that shows the new prospect of modernization, and vividly shows the distinctive characteristics of China's modernization. The five Chinese characteristics of Chinese path to modernization have also aroused widespread concern in the academic community about this important point of view. At present, the academic circles have carried out extensive discussions on Chinese path to modernization, providing a reference and research basis for its systematic research. Wang Birui and others believe that the Chinese characteristics of Chinese path to modernization are rooted in the fertile soil of Chinese civilization, and it is a comprehensive grasp and rich development of Marxist modernization theory, ancient Chinese economic thought and the law of modernization construction of the CPC. Wu Aijun believes that the development of Chinese path to modernization with Chinese characteristics under the guidance of Marxist theories such as the law of human society development and Marxist thought on world history has rich theoretical implications. Li Shumei and others believed that Chinese path to modernization with Chinese characteristics meets the needs of social development, has a vivid practical logic, is the need to achieve common prosperity, is the need to improve the overall efficiency of modernization, is the need to adhere to independence. Liu Gang and others believe that the excellent traditional Chinese culture has laid a solid cultural foundation for Chinese path to modernization, and the ideas of "what is common" and "people are the foundation of the state" have provided rich nourishment for the Chinese characteristics of Chinese path to modernization. Li Zheng and others believed that the relevant economic theories of Marxism laid a theoretical foundation for Chinese path to modernization, and the practical exploration of modernization led by the Party and the people since the reform and opening up laid a practical foundation for Chinese path to modernization. Zhang Shuhuan and others believe that Chinese path to modernization has a distinct party logic. The CPC keeps its original mission in mind, promotes the deepening development of Chinese path to modernization, leads the new democratic revolution to provide basic conditions for China's modernization, and promotes the formation and development of Chinese path to modernization in governance. Ma Junfeng and others believed that the Chinese characteristics of Chinese path to modernization is the logical necessity of "four dimensions in one", the Marxist modernization theory, the CPC's conscious exploration and continuous pursuit, the realistic needs of national rejuvenation, and the great achievements of the CPC in forging ahead. These four dimensions together promoted the proposition of Chinese path to modernization with Chinese characteristics. The main content and basic characteristics of Chinese path to modernization with Chinese characteristics are that the huge population is the foundation of Chinese path to modernization and the most distinctive feature of Chinese path to modernization. He pointed out that China's total population has reached its peak, and there is a dynamic development trend in several dimensions such as structure, quality, and space. Han Qingxiang and others defined the huge population size as "realistic logic", whose natural predisposition laid a realistic foundation for Chinese path to modernization, and pointed out the development advantages of the huge population size from the perspectives of rich human resources and huge market demand. Starting from profound connotations, theoretical innovations, and contemporary values, Sun Yixin comprehensively expounds the important feature of "modernization for common prosperity of all people". He believes that the "modernization of common prosperity for all people" contains the fundamental position, essential requirements and objectives of Chinese path to modernization. Shi Wei criticized the materialism of Western style modernization and its spiritual tragedy. She clearly pointed out that the basic viewpoint of materialist conception of history laid the foundation for "coordinating material civilization and spiritual civilization" is based on the Marxist theory of comprehensive development, and the fundamental task of the Party and the state in different historical stages is its practical foundation. It is necessary to promote the coordinated development of material civilization and spiritual civilization in the process of deepening the new form of human civilization. Li Yujiu and others believe that it is necessary to dialectically handle the relationship between promoting the comprehensive enrichment of things, widely practicing socialist core values, and promoting the comprehensive development of socialist people, in order to achieve balanced development. Shi Jianxun and others believe that achieving modernization that harmonizes material and spiritual civilization requires drawing lessons from the lack of coordination between the "two civilizations" of capitalist countries, overcoming the drawbacks of rampant materialism and moral decay, and surpassing Western style modernization in the deepening of the coordinated development of the "two civilizations" in China's practice. Yin Wenming believed that the process of Chinese path to modernization created preconditions and material basis for peaceful development, and pointed out the practical logic of Chinese style peaceful development from the individual level, social level, national level and natural ecological level, so as to promote the development of world peace. Li Aihua believes that the peaceful development of Chinese path to modernization promotes the cause of peaceful development in the practical process of properly responding to the "new hegemonism" of the United States, establishing a new security concept, and establishing various "partnerships", and elucidates the characteristics of peaceful development of Chinese path to modernization in such measures as maintaining world peace, developing oneself through peaceful means, promoting world peace and development through China, and promoting the building of a "harmonious world". Liu Shuyang and others believe that the leadership of the CPC is the background of Chinese path to modernization. Kang Fengyun and others believed that Chinese path to modernization has both the universality and particularity of the development law, the peace and compression of the development process, and the comprehensiveness and synchronization of the development field. Through combing the existing research literature, it can be found that at present, the academic circles have been relatively rich in the description and research of Chinese path to modernization, but the research on the Chinese characteristics of Chinese path to modernization is not deep enough, and there are deficiencies. It is mainly manifested in the following aspects: First, it failed to explain the content and structure of Chinese path to modernization with Chinese characteristics in theory, and lacked in-depth theoretical analysis of the Chinese characteristics of Chinese path to modernization; Second, the academic community lacks the necessary summary of the research on the Chinese characteristics of Chinese path to modernization; Third, in previous studies, the Chinese characteristics of Chinese path to modernization were mostly studied from the perspective of economy, culture, ecology, etc., lacking systematic and holistic research.

3. THE SIGNIFICANCE OF CHINESE PATH TO MODERNIZATION WITH CHINESE CHARACTERISTICS

3.1. Theoretical Significance

The Chinese characteristics of Chinese path to modernization are vivid expressions of the important theories of Marx and Engels on modernization, Lenin's important thoughts on building socialist modernization, the theoretical contributions of CPC people to modernization, and the cultural heritage inherent in Chinese excellent traditional culture in the new era. By systematically summarizing and summing up the logical basis, main contents and basic characteristics of Chinese path to modernization with Chinese characteristics, we will continue to deepen our understanding of the Chinese characteristics of Chinese path to modernization and build a theoretical framework with Chinese characteristics. In the current theoretical circle, there are still deficiencies in the specialized research on the Chinese characteristics of Chinese path to modernization. The expression of the Chinese characteristics of Chinese path to modernization is the latest interpretation of the sinicization of Marxist modernization theory based on the world situation, national conditions and the Party's situation, which not only develops the CPC people's thoughts on modernization, but also deepens the sinicization of Marxist modernization theory. Through a more systematic and in-depth exposition of the generation logic, main contents, basic characteristics, practical orientation and value implications of the Chinese characteristics of Chinese path to modernization, a panoramic understanding of the Chinese characteristics of Chinese path to modernization is formed. At the same time, the in-depth study of the world significance of Chinese path to modernization with Chinese characteristics has deepened the understanding of the development law of human civilization, broadened the research horizon, and provided a new perspective for research.

3.2. Practical Significance

The important exposition of Chinese path to modernization with Chinese characteristics scientifically and comprehensively answers basic questions such as the distinctive Chinese characteristics of Chinese path to modernization, which is different from other countries' modernization, provides a guide to action for China to take a good path of peaceful development, provides a direction for achieving common prosperity for all people, and provides a practical strategy for coping with the complex and changing international environment.

4. PRACTICAL REQUIREMENTS OF CHINESE PATH TO MODERNIZATION WITH CHINESE CHARACTERISTICS

The Chinese characteristics of Chinese path to modernization adhere to the logic of people first, break away from the swamp of alienation, correct the logic of capital, and realize the transcendence and development of the previous modernization model. In the new era and new journey, to highlight the Chinese characteristics of Chinese path to modernization, we should accurately grasp the national characteristics, value characteristics, development characteristics, ecological characteristics, and peace characteristics corresponding to the five characteristics, break the discourse monopoly of the western modernization model, and highlight the superiority of the Chinese path to modernization model. The huge population size is the realistic condition of Chinese path to modernization, which determines the difficulty and complexity of China's modernization construction. Therefore, it is necessary to formulate a scientific modernization strategy based on the characteristics of population size, leverage population advantages, and embark on a new journey of socialist modernization. Common prosperity is the essential feature of Chinese path to modernization, the value orientation of China's modernization construction, and the good pursuit of all previous leaders in governing the country. In the process of implementing the value characteristics of Chinese path to modernization, we should focus on promoting common prosperity from the distribution system and improving people's livelihood. Chinese path to modernization is the modernization of material civilization and spiritual civilization in harmony. This important feature avoids the risk of one-way development of people in western countries, corrects the spiritual woes of the western modernization model, and opens up a new modernization path of coordinated development of material civilization and spiritual civilization. Chinese path to modernization is a kind of modernization in which people and nature coexist in harmony. It skillfully breaks the zero sum game between economic development and environmental protection, opens up a new way of modernization in which "green waters and green mountains" and "golden mountains and silver mountains" coexist, and demonstrates the high self-awareness and great creativity of the Party and the country in actively solving ecological problems. Peaceful development is a prominent feature of Chinese path to modernization, and its appearance has a profound logical basis: the guidance of the Marxist world peace view, the unremitting pursuit of the CPC, and the cultural heritage of the Chinese nation advocating peace constitute its theoretical basis; The challenges faced in the process of modernization, such as the threats of hegemonism and terrorism, international competition, and anti globalization trends, provide a practical foundation for it. To implement the peaceful characteristics of Chinese path to modernization, we must unswervingly be the defender and promoter of world peace and development, and promote the realization of the world dream of common prosperity with a correct view of justice and interests.

5. CONCLUSION

Chinese path to modernization is a new kind of human civilization, which shows a new picture of the development of world civilization and promotes the overall development of world modernization. The history of the CPC's exploration of modernization is a century long history of struggle, which demonstrates the high sense of responsibility of the CPC in shouldering the historical mission of national rejuvenation. The modernization path of the CPC is different from the western tandem development path. Following the parallel development logic, it has realized the leap forward development of Chinese path to modernization, broken through the discourse hegemony of western modernization, realized the Chinese narrative of modernization, and demonstrated the Chinese style and Chinese style of modernization.
